

Summer 2024 Graduate Support Opportunity – Grants

Summer Research/Creative Activity Grants

The purpose of the Summer Research/Creative Activity Grants program is to provide ISU students with the support necessary for them to conduct research or engage in creative activity related to their programs during the summer months and complete a pre-defined program of work.

Call for Applicants:

Graduate students in any Idaho State University graduate program currently conducting research as part of their program requirements are eligible to apply. Those interested should complete the application using the link below. Be prepared to provide a detailed “Program of Work” that describes your project’s research goals, your intended summer research activities, and how this support would advance your progress in your degree program. You will also need to submit a detailed budget itemizing any projected expenditures. A statement of support from a faculty advisor is also required. Applications and faculty statements of support must be submitted by April 30 using the link below. Please note: You must be signed into your browser with your ISU credentials to access this application form.

Support Amounts/Stipends:

Research Grants up to $2000 will be considered. The proposal may include stipend support, travel costs, and/or equipment. Students receiving support should anticipate submitting a short statement after the summer semester detailing how the support provided impacted their graduate school experience.
